A hand is shown reaching out from behind a shattered glass wall. The hand is positioned in the center-right of the frame, with fingers spread. The glass is broken into many small, sharp fragments, some of which are floating in the air around the hand. The background behind the glass is a bright, solid blue color. The overall scene suggests a moment of breakthrough or escape.

A large-scale construction project featuring a massive glass wall. Two workers in white protective suits are visible on the right side of the frame, standing on a wooden construction platform. The glass wall is partially installed, with some sections still being worked on. The background shows a clear blue sky and some greenery, suggesting an outdoor setting. The overall scene is one of active construction and modern architecture.

A person in a white protective suit is working on a curved glass wall. The wall is covered in a blue and white pattern, possibly a mural or a decorative design. The scene is set at dusk, with a dark blue sky and some trees visible in the background. The person is standing on a white ledge or platform, and there are some lights on the floor. The overall atmosphere is one of quiet industry and artistic creation.
